

I'm a Realtor, Not A Photographer

Gone are the days where buyers went from house to house looking at homes.

Now, there are 6 times more houses on the market in a given month than 10 years ago.

Buyers can't see everything in their price range in one day anymore.

How to buyers narrow down their choices?

They look at pictures of the inside. Homes that look big, clean, and better than the others are the ones they want to see.

I want buyers to see your house!

I utilize the services of COS

Photos, a full time professional real estate photographer to take listing photos.

This provides me with high quality listing content for use on the internet, MLS and print advertising.

This increases online views of your home, causing more showings, and helping to sell it faster.
